CORBETT BESTS HANLON IN A WHIRLWIND CONTEST AFTER SIXTEEN ROUNDS

Champion Administers a Fearful Beating to the San Francisco Lad and the Referee Stops the Fight.

In the Fifteenth Hanlon's Backers Are Implored to Take Their Man From the Ring, but Refuse to Do So, and, When He Becomes Helpless in the Sixteenth, Granev Mercifully Puts an End to the Slaughter.

San Francisco, Dec. 30.—A merciful referee probably saved Eddie Hanlon from being killed by Young Corbett last night when he stopped their contest in the middle of the 16th round. For the two rounds previous Referee Granev had begged Hanlon's seconds to take their man out of the ring, but they kept the game youngster at it, and finally Granev, fearing a fatality might result, ordered the fight stopped. No man ever received such terrific punishment in a San Francisco ring and probably Young Corbett is the only man in the country who could administer such a beating to Hanlon. The San Francisco boy was carried to his corner, still conscious, but unable to walk, and his seconds worked vigorously to revive him. The terribly beaten lad however, commenced to vomit blood and things looked very serious for him for a short time. He was finally revived and was carried from the ring by one of his seconds. Before he left Young Corbett paid a high tribute to Hanlon's skill and gameness and saluted his brother prizefighter with an affectionate kiss. It must be said for Corbett that he was as merciful under the circumstances as he could be. During the 14th and 15th rounds he, too, was anxious to have the fight stopped in order to save Hanlon needless punishment. At no time was Corbett in danger. Hanlon's peculiar and effective defense was all that saved him from a knockout. It was not until the 13th and 14th round that Corbett showed what he could do. The men were allowed to fight in clinches, and Corbett, leaning his head against Hanlon's shoulder, and with his arms free, would punch him in the stomach with his right and swing fierce short lefts on his jaw. In the 15th round Corbett backed Hanlon into a corner, and when the San Francisco boy swung feebly, Corbett swung two lightning lefts and Hanlon went down. He took the count of eight, but struggled to his feet, and again received terrific punishment. It was here Granev wanted the fight stopped. The 15th round had lasted but a minute and 4 seconds when the referee stopped the fight. Hanlon, when seen in his dressing room after the fight, was still in great distress, and refused to talk much. He did say, however, that Corbett can beat any of them.

bell changed summoning the principals to action. Interest in the outcome was intense. Despite the fact that Hanlon, in his previous encounter with the champion, had somewhat the best of the bout, and the well-known propensity of the local sporting fraternity to allow sentiment to warp their judgment in contests participated in by local celebrities, Corbett was pronounced the favorite in the betting, opening up at odds of 10 to 8 a few days ago. The odds gradually shortened, owing to the weight of the Corbett money, and when the lads entered the pavilion were 2 to 1 with the Denver crack on the long end. At these figures many large wagers were made at the ringside, there seeming to be no lack of Hanlon money in sight. One of the reasons advanced for the unevenness of the betting is the fact that most of the eastern turfmen and bookmakers attending the local races, had pinned their faith on the superiority of the champion and had backed their opinions freely.

Corbett and Hanlon met at Harry Corbett's, where the question of weight was decided. The articles of agreement stipulated that they should weigh in at 129 pounds at 6 o'clock or forfeit $1000. Corbett was first to step on the scales and just tipped the beam at 129 pounds. Hanlon was evidently under these figures, as he failed to move the scales. About the ringside were many eastern men of national reputation. Jack Munro, who had met Champion Jeffries at Butte, was among those present. A large delegation of Corbett men arrived from Denver to witness the contest. The party was headed by Otto Fioto, the well-known sporting writer.

The first preliminary was between Jack Evans, of this city, and the veteran Australian slugger, "Austrian Billy" Murphy. This was Murphy's first appearance in the ring after an absence of several years. The men went on for six rounds. The referee called it a draw. The second preliminary, between George Curran, of San Francisco, and Jack Ritchie, of New York, was won by the latter in the second round, when Curran was so groggy the referee stopped the fight.

THE MAIN EVENT BY ROUNDS.

Story of the Hardest Fight Ever Seen in San Francisco. Young Corbett was the first to enter the ring. He wore bandages on his arms. He was looked after by Billy Otto, Tim McGrath and Harry Tutthill. The champion went to his arrival of Hanlon. Hanlon entered the ring at 9:25. Like Corbett his hands were in bandages. He at once went to the champion's corner and they shook hands. He was seconded by Harry Foley, Fred Landers, Ted Wolf and Toby Irwin. He was introduced by Announcer Jordan as the "pride of California," and received much applause. The champion was announced as "the pride of Denver and champion of the known world." His reception was equal to that of Hanlon.

The customary challenges from eastern pugilists were read, among them being Young Mowatta, Sammy Smith and Louis Long. Terry Govern has sent a telegram to meet Hanlon in event of Hanlon being returned. Jack Munro, of Butte, was 1 and the crowd yelled for Hanlon. Jack slipped off the stage quickly. Referee Granev appeared in the ring clad in his evening suit. Corbett looked much bigger around the arms and shoulders, but Hanlon is the taller of the two. Both looked well.

It was announced to be a 20-round go, Marquis of Queensberry rules.

Round 1—Corbett tried several times to penetrate Hanlon's guard with right and left swings, but failed to get under Hanlon's peculiar defense. Finally he got in a right to the nose a right to the stomach and two lefts to the face. Corbett kept pegging away and forced Eddie to cover. Corbett got in a straight left to body as they mixed. Hanlon was mostly on the defensive. In a mixup Hanlon drove the right twice to the body and followed with a right to the jaw. Hanlon missed a left and sent a right to face. Corbett stood up to him and jabbed left and right to face. As the round closed both swung lefts and rights to face. Corbett did most of the leading. There was no damage.

Round 2—Hanlon swung left and right for the face, but Corbett put in two straight lefts to face. Corbett put left to face and Ed missed a hard right for the head. Corbett labored in pegging away at Eddie's face, landing several light blows. Corbett put in terrific right under Hanlon's heart which rattled and hurt Ed, who fought back wildly. Hanlon accused Corbett of hanging on. Hanlon swung right and left to jaw, forcing Corbett to the ropes, then sent a straight right to the face. Corbett fought back viciously, forcing Ed to a clinch. Hanlon made much the better showing in this round.

Round 3—Corbett tried with the left several times for the face, but could not get in. He straightened Eddie with a right uppercut and they mixed, both landing good lefts to the face. Corbett sent a straight right to the face and Ed's nose began to bleed. Corbett uppercut with the right twice to the face. Corbett missed a right uppercut for the face and a moment later sent in three rights to the face, ear and jaw. Eddie bared in and Corbett sent a right uppercut to the chin and a hard right swing to the ear. Corbett planted left and right to Eddie's face as the bell rang. It was Corbett's round.

Round 4—Corbett came up smiling and proceeded to jab at Ed's face. Hanlon planted a right to the kidneys. Corbett appeared to be slowing down a bit. He sent a right quick as a flash to Ed's face and followed it quickly with a hard right to the ear. Corbett ducked a vicious right swing and gave Ed a smart right to the jaw. Hanlon drove hard left to body. Corbett rushed as the round closed, but failed to land.

Round 5—Both missed lefts for the face and Corbett swung the right to the jaw. In a mix Corbett uppercut the right to the body. In the break-away Eddie landed hard right on the head. Corbett then sent Eddie back to the ropes with a clean right to the jaw, remarking, "How do you like that?" Hanlon got in a right upper-
